Warsaw Convention Bureau – your reliable local partner!

Warsaw's significance as a meetings destination is growing year on year, with the Polish capital becoming an increasingly important hub for business, science and culture in Central and Eastern Europe. The economic and scientific growth of the city is driven by the exceptionally good performance of the Polish economy and the many innovation and start-up centres located in Warsaw. As a natural consequence of this, more and more organisers of international meetings and corporate and association events are choosing to benefit from the huge knowledge transfer and networking potential that Warsaw has to offer. On top of that, the Polish capital also provides a lot of added value for meeting planners and participants alike: an attractive and unique leisure offer, a rich cultural life and professional MICE services, products and infrastructure.

Our meetings guide is an introduction to the conference and events potential of Warsaw. It contains information about the best and most highly-recommended venues and service providers operating in the city. In addition, we would also encourage all meeting planners to contact the team at the Warsaw Convention Bureau – local experts who are happy to help with any MICE-related request.

See you in Warsaw!

Warsaw CvB Support

We trust the following support will help you in making your congress a success.

One of the goals of Warsaw Convention Bureau is to encourage meeting planners of conferences, fairs and congresses to host their event in the city. As part of this goal, we offer support to both Polish and international meeting planners considering Warsaw for their events. By using the synergy of public and private entities associated in Warsaw Tourism Organisation, we strive to provide each organiser with the range of services.

Each request for support is individually evaluated and the decision on the scope of the support depends on a number of factors, such as the available resources of Warsaw Convention Bureau and its partners, as well as the economic impact and significance in terms of content and image of the event. ■

Discover Warsaw

Warsaw lies at the heart of Poland, which itself is at the heart of Europe, so it's the perfect location not only for political and scientific conferences, but also for business and cultural events.

Its modern architecture, user-friendly infrastructure and creative inhabitants all help to make Warsaw the beating heart of business. But behind the hustle and bustle of the business world, you can also feel the rhythm of city life. Try the varied delights of the city's many restaurants, take a stroll along the banks of Vistula or simply stroll around and discover the fascinating reality of life in a modern European city.

Warsaw is a city just waiting to be explored. Constantly changing and modernising, it soon becomes almost unrecognisable if you don't visit for a while. But there are aspects of its quirky character, and many cult places, which are always there, just waiting to be discovered. Whether you are visiting Warsaw on business or for pleasure, the city offers everything you need to make your stay here the perfect break.

See what makes Warsaw special! ■

Warsaw in a nutshell

Warsaw has a long and often tumultuous history stretching back centuries. But the city's experiences in the last century especially can serve as a powerful reminder of the indomitable nature of the human spirit. Starting that period under Russian subjugation as part of the Partitions, the city then flourished in the inter-war years to such an extent that it became known as the Paris of the North. Reduced to rubble after the destruction of World War II, Warsaw then rose again following a period of Soviet influence to achieve its current position as a thriving modern city.

Traces of this history are present everywhere you look in modern-day Warsaw. The events of August and September 1944 are brought to life in the Warsaw Rising Museum, while the remarkable resilience of the city can be seen in the Old Town, a UNESCO World Heritage site, which was completely reconstructed after the war in great painstaking detail.

The Old Town is also the starting point of the Royal Route, an avenue that runs from the Royal Castle – the seat of Polish Kings – down past the Royal Łazienki Park, a Palace garden complex, and then continuing further down to the Wilanów Royal Palace.

The aesthetic appearance of the city during the communist era was shaped by the monumental, utilitarian architecture of socialism, with its skyline dominated by the towering Palace of Culture and Science. Since Poland's political transformation, however, huge improvements have been made and Warsaw has seen rapid and dramatic changes which now make it an inspiring place both to live in and to visit. ■

Chopin's Warsaw

Fryderyk Chopin is known all around the world as one of the greatest composers and pianists of the 19th century. But what is not so well known is that Chopin also has a very strong connection with Warsaw. For it was here, in the Polish capital, where Fryderyk grew up and spent his formative years, only leaving the city in 1830, at the age of 20, to move to Paris.

It was in Warsaw where Fryderyk learned to play the piano, and where he came to the attention of the music-loving elites and local music critics alike. Even as his fame grew, however, he remained a typical Warsaw boy at heart, doing all the things that other young men of his age enjoyed doing, like strolling around the city streets, learning foreign languages, courting eligible young ladies and simply passing the time away with his friends in fashionable cafes.

Walking around the streets of Warsaw today provides many opportunities to see Fryderyk Chopin's legacy (his heart was even brought back to the city after his death and encased in a stone pillar in Holy Cross Church). Use free mobile applications (available on: en.chopin.warsawtour.pl) to find out just how interesting Chopin's Warsaw was, and still is!

His music has special meaning for many Poles as an expression of their passionate nature, their unique culture and the highs and lows of their turbulent history. There are public concerts of his music throughout the summer in Royal Łazienki Park, under the watchful eye of Chopin's own monument, but if you can't wait for the weekend, you can also hear his music all year round on one of the many interactive multimedia Chopin benches located at key sites connected with his life here in the city. These are also perfect stop-off points for a short breather during your sight-seeing walks around the city.

If you'd like to delve a little deeper into the background of the man himself, the excellent Fryderyk Chopin Museum, which houses the largest collection of Chopin memorabilia in the world, is modern and interactive and well worth a visit. Or you could even take a short trip out of Warsaw to visit the nearby towns of Żelazowa Wola, to see Chopin's actual birthplace, or Sanniki to learn more about Chopin and the typical Mazovian folk culture that influenced his work. ■

The Fryderyk Chopin Museum at Warsaw's Ostrogski Palace is one of the most highly acclaimed modern biographical museums in Europe. The multimedia exhibition expertly displays the world's richest and most varied collection of Chopin memorabilia – from his life and his works. The collection includes manuscripts and printed copies of Chopin's compositions, his correspondence, autographs, notes, personal items, and pianos. [Address: ul. Okólnik 1]

Everyday Chopin's Concerts at the Old Town:

6.00 PM, Time For Chopin, Plac Zamkowy 8

7.00 PM, Chopin Point, Krakowskie Przedmieście 62

7.00 PM, Fryderyk Concert Hall, Podwale 15

Don't miss!

Open-air concerts are held at the feet of the monument to Fryderyk Chopin every Sunday from May until September. The concerts welcome outstanding pianists from all over the world and are free of charge. All you need to do is sit in the park and listen to the wonderful music.

Chopin and His Europe International Music Festival

Chopin and His Europe International Music Festival is a magnet for all lovers of classical and contemporary music. Organised every August since 2005 by the Fryderyk Chopin Institute, every year there is a new overarching theme followed by the outstanding Polish and international artists invited to play there.

18th Fryderyk Chopin International Piano Competition

Every five years since 1927, Warsaw has been attracting the very best piano players in the world to participate in the Fryderyk Chopin International Piano Competition. The competition has gone from strength to strength – which is no surprise, given the event's prestige and the international careers enjoyed by the winners. Between October 2nd - 23rd, 2020 Warsaw will once again become the piano capital of the world.

The Vistula 'District'

You won't find a river like it in any other European capital! The left bank is the place to go for entertainment, delicious food and interesting cultural events, while the right side of the river is a Natura 2000 area – a natural habitat for many breeding species of birds threatened with extinction. The river's clean and well-maintained beaches also attract not only sports enthusiasts but also people who just like to spend time in a relaxing environment.

Vistula Boulevards

The Vistula Boulevards are a friendly space for everyone, including cyclists. The main attractions include viewing platforms, a mini-beach and food pavilions with international cuisine from all around the world. There are also river jetties where you can take a cruise down the Vistula to admire Warsaw's panorama from a different perspective.

Beaches

Warsaw's beaches have been recognised by such respected publications as National Geographic and The Guardian as being among the most beautiful urban beaches in the world. Clean, tidy and well-maintained, they have proved a massive hit with locals, visitors and sports enthusiasts alike. Go to the beach by the Poniatowski bridge for a game of beach volleyball, to the beach at Plyta Desantu for a short trip on a traditional wooden boat, or to the beach in Saska Kępa for an evening with friends by a campfire.

Multimedia Fountain Park

The Multimedia Fountain Park is located on the left bank of the Vistula, at the foot of the Old Town. During the summer, water shows take place there every afternoon, and on Friday and Saturday evenings there is a stunning laser show combining water, light and sound.

Natura 2000 area

Warsaw has managed to preserve much of the natural environment around the Vistula, creating picturesque little islands that have become a vital habitat for endangered bird species. If you're passionate about ornithology, then with a bit of luck you'll be able to see cormorants, kingfishers and herons in their natural surroundings.

Copernicus Science Centre

A true paradise for all science buffs, and most definitely not just for the younger members of the family. You can conduct experiments yourself, watch a show in the Heavens of Copernicus Planetarium or visit the High Voltage Theatre. Nearby is the Mermaid statue, the symbol of Warsaw.

Modern Architecture on the Vistula

This stretch along the river is home to two unique places. One is Museum on the Vistula – the temporary home of the Museum of Modern Art – which houses exhibitions by Polish and foreign artists. And the second is the multiple award-winning University of Warsaw Library. Be sure to go to the roof garden, which is divided into several sections, each with its own design, colour, smell and mood. ■

Warsaw Judaica

Warsaw has a strong connection with Jewish life and culture going back centuries. Before World War II, over 30 per cent of Warsaw's population was Jewish, making it the second largest Jewish population in the world behind New York. The city boasted many Jewish schools, libraries, theatres and sports clubs and it was also home to many famous celebrities, such as author and Nobel Prize winner, Isaac Bashevis Singer, pianist and composer Władysław Szpilman – known from the film "The Pianist" – and the outstanding actress Ida Kamińska.

The atrocities of the Second World War changed everything, however, when the Nazis established a Jewish ghetto and set about systematically exterminating the inhabitants and destroying synagogues.

There are many places in Warsaw today that hark back to this tragic time: the Monument of the Ghetto Heroes next to POLIN Museum, the Umschlagplatz memorial (marking the place from where Jews were transported to the Treblinka death camp) and also numerous signs on the city pavements marking where the ghetto walls once stood. The places which are most associated with Jewish culture today include POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews, the Jewish Theatre, Grzybowski Square, Prózna Street and the Nożyk Synagogue, but inspirational stories can be found everywhere. The Żabiński Villa, for example, tells the incredible tale, immortalised in a film, of the Warsaw Zoo director and his wife who saved large numbers of Jewish people during the war.

Every year at the beginning of September, there is also a festival of Jewish culture – called "Singer's Warsaw" – which spreads awareness of the richness of Jewish culture. ■

POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews

- Winner of the 2017 European Union Prize for Cultural Heritage / Europa Nostra Awards.
- The best European museum of 2016, awarded by EMYA.
- It is not a Holocaust museum, this is a museum of life – 1,000 years of history of the Polish and Jewish nations.
- Located in a very symbolic place, next to the Ghetto Heroes Monument in the district of the former ghetto.
- The amazing reconstruction of the wooden Gwoździec synagogue is a must see.

Culinary Warsaw

Over the past few years Warsaw has undergone a real revolution and become a popular culinary destination. The city has literally filled with eateries – from elegant, starred restaurants to unpretentious bistros and milk bars, where soups, dumplings, tripe soups and cream pies reign supreme. Warsaw’s fare has come to the notice of the foreign media, among others Forbes and the authoritative blog HappyCow Vegan Guide, which in 2018 ranked the Polish capital among the top vegan-friendly cities. Warsaw strongly promotes diversity – nearly all corners of the world meet on the table. We can taste cuisine from Ukraine, Georgia, Hungary, the Middle East or vegan sushi that is even admired by the Japanese. Warsaw’s food constantly amazes tourists and residents alike by creativity, attention to the quality of the products and the fact that you can eat well at a very affordable price. ■

In the footsteps of communism

After World War II, while the Old Town was being painstakingly rebuilt from photographs and memories, the rest of Warsaw took on a new look which reflected the new era.

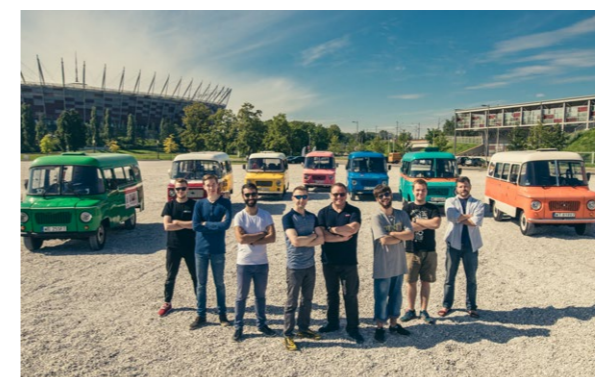

The city was rebuilt in a new architectural style described as "socialist in content and national in form". This 'socialist realism' architectural heritage is most visible in Warsaw with the Palace of Culture and Science, which celebrated its 60th anniversary in 2015 and continues to define the city landscape.

Just walking around Parade Square surrounding the Palace it's easy to imagine it filled with huge crowds listening to the propaganda-filled speeches of the leaders of the Polish People's Republic. Constitution Square (Plac Konstytucji), in the Marszałkowska Housing District, also features impressive huge sculptures from the 1950s in the same 'socialist realism' style. You can get a feel for the spirit of those bygone days by visiting one of the last remaining milk bars – cheap canteens for the masses from that time – which continue to offer inexpensive, home-style traditional Polish cooking. They are well worth a visit to sample a unique atmosphere where time has stood still.

Interest in this time is so strong that new bars are now opening up which are styled on the post-communist ones. Pay a visit to the fascinating private Life Under Communism museum (ul. Piękna 28/34) and hear stories about a time when life seemed to revolve around empty shelves in the shops and long queues. ■

Discover Warsaw Museums

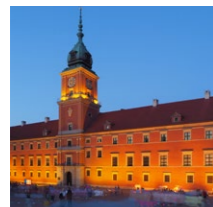

During your stay in Warsaw, try to find a little time to visit some of the city’s excellent museums and galleries. Stop by the Royal Castle, the Museum of Warsaw, or visit another former royal residence - the Royal Łazienki Museum – located in the most beautiful park in the city. If you haven’t been before, take a trip to the Warsaw Rising Museum, dedicated to the heroism of Varsovians and the events of the final months of World War II. The POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews will introduce you to the 1,000-year-old history of Polish Jews. Art lovers should also not pass up the chance to visit the Zachęta National Gallery of Art, the Ujazdowski Castle Centre for Contemporary Art or the temporary home of the Museum of Modern Art in Warsaw in the riverside location of the Museum on the Vistula. Or you could cross the river and go to the Museum of Polish Vodka, housed in a historic distillation and rectification plant within the area of the Praga Koneser Centre. Back on the city centre side of the river, the Gallery of Steel Figures contains many amazing sculptures made from recycled metal, while you can also enrich your time in Warsaw by taking the lift up to the 30th floor of the Palace of Culture and Science for inspiring panoramic views of the city. ■

When travelling, do you often combine touring the city with visiting local museums? We present a brochure that will make it easier for you to discover Warsaw museums and galleries. You can find it in the Warsaw Tourist Information point in the Palace of Culture and Science or download it at wot.waw.pl.

Scientific Community

Having in mind a sustainable, long term development of innovate local economy and science Warsaw has implemented a Triple Helix concept, where innovation within the knowledge based economy is the result of close cooperation between three sectors: science, business and local administration. Warsaw perceives the development of a modern, knowledge based economy as a major strategic goal. The city is constantly increasing the impact of the research sector on the economy by developing its research infrastructure, transferring knowledge and technology between science and business (with centres of advanced services and databases) and increasing access to innovation support tools (consulting, training, scholarships, grants etc.).

Warsaw is one of the most important scientific hubs in Europe, with over 150 scientific institutions and many professors and researchers who play a leading role in their respective international associations. The city’s authorities are aware of how important it is to develop a network of cooperative relationships which not only lead to improved mutual relations between companies and the scientific community, but can also help to build the important MICE sector of the economy. The City of Warsaw therefore uses the synergy of the public and private entities associated within the Warsaw Tourism Organization to offer wide support for any event organisers who are considering bringing their congresses, conferences, fairs or other events to Warsaw. ■

Polish Congress Ambassadors Programme

Through their professional activity in international associations, the Polish Congress Ambassadors spread knowledge about Poland's advantages and secure international congresses for the country. Each year, the council of the Polish Congress Ambassadors Programme nominates yearly up to 20 representatives of scientific and business communities who exceptionally contribute to acquiring international congresses to Poland and who excel in promoting the country abroad. At present, there are 269 Congress Ambassadors. ■

Research and Development

Warsaw is an interdisciplinary science hub with one of the largest number of top-rated scientific units with A+ rating in the whole CEE area. With the focus on natural sciences (biology, chemistry, physics, environmental sciences) and engineering and technical sciences (material science, biomedical engineering, automation, electronics and electrical engineering, medical sciences and health sciences) Warsaw has a lot to offer for international research and development community.

In the 'Warsaw - space for research and development' report there are 34 leading R&D units described in details, showcasing their specialization, R&D offer, key scientific achievements of recent years and contact details to those handling international cooperation.

2 metro lines

3 main train stations connected to the public transportation network

91% of Warsaw residents believe that Warsaw is a bicycle-friendly city

90% of Warsaw residents have a positive opinion of the public transport in the city

Whether you are sight-seeing in the Old Town or wandering around the area surrounding the Palace of Culture and Science, the easiest and most interesting way to look around is definitely on foot. But if you want to give your legs a break, Warsaw has a very efficient and safe public transport system comprising two metro lines, trams, buses and night buses.

Alternatively, if you'd like to escape from modern forms of transport for a while, and you fancy travelling around Warsaw in a bit of style, you can always get a taste of life in 19th century Warsaw by hitching a ride in one of the horse omnibuses or horse-drawn cabs which operate near the Old Town.

Another popular way to get around is to take a trip back in time to the 1950s with a ride on the historic "T" tram line, which runs through the city centre and on the right side of the river. Or you can avoid the roads altogether with trips along the Vistula River by water tram or ferry.

Finally, you can even let someone else's legs take the strain with a rickshaw ride around the Krakowskie Przedmieście area. ■

Rent a bike!

Warsaw has an impressive and constantly expanding network of cycle paths that makes getting around the city by bike easy and a lot of fun.

You can take advantage of this by hiring a Veturilo bike, available to rent by the hour from March to November. Accounts are easy to set up in just a matter of minutes and they open up the city for bike rides both near and far. They make a great way to explore the natural cycle tracks through the woods along the Praga side of the river, or the newly-opened Boulevards, on the city centre side of the river, which stretch for kilometres and contain many bars and restaurants and other attractions for all the family.

Since it began several years ago, the system has gone from strength to strength, with over 700,000 account-holders and 6 million separate bike rentals last year, making it one of the largest and most popular systems in Europe.

Royal Łazienki was King Stanisław August's summer residence, in which classicist architecture is harmoniously blended with its gardens.

This is a place where you can not only rest, but also deepen your knowledge about the ideas of the Enlightenment, by visiting such gems of European architecture as: the Palace on the Isle, housing the Royal Picture Gallery; The Old Orangery, housing the Royal Sculpture Gallery and the Royal Theatre; the White Pavilion, housing the King's Collection of Prints; the Myślewicki Palace; the Officer Cadets School; and the picturesque Amphitheatre.

In the Royal Łazienki gardens, you can stroll along paths and alleys surrounded by trees, shrubs, and flowers. Visitors can spend their time in the Royal Garden, the Romantic Garden and the Modernist Garden. The Deckchair Leisure Zone – located near the New Orangery – is also available.

Royal Łazienki is an ideal place to organise a gala, a reception, a concert or a conference, not forgetting a romantic wedding ceremony.

The harmonious space, combining classical architecture with beautiful gardens, will raise the status of any event. By planning your event in these interiors, you can be certain of arranging unforgettable occasions.

The Praga Museum of Warsaw is a division of the Museum of Warsaw and one of the first museums (ever!) on Warsaw’s right river bank. Museum’s mission is to preserve and promote the heritage of the entire eastern Warsaw. It is located on 50/52 Targowa Street, in one of the oldest residential buildings in this part of the city. Museum’s offer is aimed not only at local residents, art communities, Polish educational institutions, enthusiasts and experts on local history and culture, but also at foreign visitors interested in a SoHo/Shoreditch-type of a city experience and also at Jewish communities and expats. The Praga Museum of Warsaw offers ideal spaces to rent suitable for different events, such as conferences, trainings, lectures, seminars, banquets, cocktails and other events.

Different is a restaurant in the dark, the only one in Poland served by blind waiters. It is a great and surprising attraction for romantic dinners for two or meetings with friends. It is a place for those who are looking for unusual experiences, strong emotions, extraordinary things, yet wanting to feel safe and being under the care of professionals. Welcome to the dark!

Małgorzata Potocka's Sabat Theatre is the only revue theatre in Poland, created on the model of pre-war Warsaw music and revue theatres. It refers to the tradition of French cabarets, Broadway and Las Vegas musical theatres, where you can eat a delicious dinner and enjoy a revue show. Only here the stage becomes a dance floor after the show. Located in the center of Warsaw, it is an ideal place to spend evening with friends, organize a corporate event or integration meeting.
